JEM's Introduction

Rigorously documenting and addressing hate crimes targeting minority communities in India.

Justice and Empowerment of Minorities

A Jamiat Ulama-i-Hind Initiative

The Justice and Empowerment of Minorities (JEM) is committed to systematically documenting and addressing hate crimes against minority communities in India. This quarterly report offers a detailed analysis of the period from October to December 2024, highlighting a concerning increase in both the frequency and intensity of these incidents. Our objective is to provide a thorough and data-driven overview of the current state of hate crimes in India. By presenting these findings, we aim to promote evidence-based decision-making and advocate for focused actions to address these critical societal challenges.

Executive Summary

In the final quarter of 2024, India has witnessed a disturbing rise in hate crimes targeting minority communities, with 228 cases verified and documented. The Justice and Empowerment of Minorities (JEM) has compiled this comprehensive report to assess the nature, distribution, and implications of these incidents. The analysis is based on credible data from mainstream media and social media reports, ensuring a high standard of accuracy and reliability in the findings.

During the Durga Visarjan procession, provocative songs were played outside the Rauza Mosque, which included lyrics such as "Topiwala (cap wearer) will chant Jai Shri Ram by lowering his head". Colours were also thrown at the mosque. टोपी वाला जय श्री राम बोलेगा

Analysis

Report

< Data Collection & Verification

Data were systematically collected from a wide array of secondary sources, including reputable news outlets, social media platforms, and video evidence. Each reported incident underwent a stringent verification process, which involved cross-referencing information from multiple sources to establish evidence credibility and authenticity.

The verification process included identifying inconsistencies, corroborating witness accounts, and assessing the reliability of the sources. This rigorous approach ensured that only verified and credible information was included in the report, effectively filtering out any unverified or questionable claims.

< Categorization

Incidents were methodically categorized into distinct types, including Physical Assaults, Hate Speech, and Damage to Religious Property, Police Misconduct, and other Forms of Violence. This systematic classification allowed for targeted analysis and helped identify patterns and trends within the data.

Analysis Tools

An advanced Excel dashboard was adopted for data compilation and analytical modeling. This sophisticated tool enabled the categorization of incidents, trend analysis, and the creation of visual representations. These visual aids provided valuable insights and significantly enhanced the overall understanding of the data.

Overview of Hate Crimes

In the fourth quarter of 2024, a total of 228 hate crime incidents were tracked and documented. These incidents were exhaustively analyzed to better understand their nature, impact, and underlying patterns. By categorizing these cases into key areas such as violence, hate speech, and property damage, we were able to gain a more comprehensive understanding of the scope and diversity of these crimes. This detailed classification is essential for highlighting the broader challenges faced by minority communities and plays a critical role in developing effective strategies to address and mitigate these issues. Additionally, the data analysis provides a critical insights into geographic trends and the socio-political factors that may have influenced these incidents. The findings highlights the urgent need for systemic changes to prevent further harm to vulnerable communities.

Minority Groups

Analysis:

The data reveals that Muslims are the most frequently targeted minority group, with 211 incidents (92.54%) accounting for the total. This overwhelming percentage indicates the severe and disproportionate nature of hate crimes against the Muslim community, reflecting deep-seated bias and prejudice. The frequency of these incidents highlights a pattern of systemic discrimination and intolerance, suggesting the existence of deeply-rooted societal and ideological biases that specifically target Muslims.

Following Muslims, Christians represent the second most affected group, with 10 incidents (4.39%). Although the number of incidents targeting Christians is relatively lower, it still points to the broader issue of religious intolerance in Indian society that extends beyond the Muslim community. Dalits are also significantly affected, with 7 incidents (3.07%) recorded, indicating that caste-based discrimination continues to intersect with religious prejudice, impacting the marginalized groups on multiple fronts.

Sikhs and Tribals, with no recorded incidents, appear less affected according to the data. However, this absence could be due to underreporting or the possibility that patterns of targeting against these communities are not captured in this dataset.

Overall, the analysis reflects a larger societal issue of discrimination and intolerance. While Muslims remains as one of the most disproportionately targeted group, the presence of incidents involving other minority communities mentions a widespread and systemic problem. This calls for urgent attention to promote equality, social justice, and protection for all marginalized groups within society.

Types of Incidents

Acts of Hate and Violence constitutes the majority of incidents, highlighting the aggressive and hostile nature of these crimes. These categories indicate a disturbing trend of physical confrontations and discriminatory rhetoric aimed at marginalized communities.

Acts of Hate, which include verbal abuse, hate speech, and harassment, account for 90 incidents (39.47%). This high percentage reflects the extensive prevalence of intolerance and discriminatory rhetoric aimed at humiliate and isolate certain communities.

Acts of Violence, contributing 55 incidents (24.12%), signifying a substantial level of direct physical confrontations and attacks against minority individuals. The significant occurrence of these incidents demonstrates the dangerous escalation from hateful speech into violent actions.

Attacks on Religious Spaces, making up 21 incidents (9.21%), involve targeted assaults on the cultural and religious symbols of minority communities. These attacks are both physical and symbolic, aimed at eroding the identity and security of these communities.

Police Atrocities, constituting 14 incidents (6.14%), suggest systemic issues within law enforcement. These cases indicate biasness and improper handling of situations involving minority groups, further perpetuating their sense of insecurity and distrust in authorities.

State-Sponsored Discrimination, with 15 incidents (6.58%), involves actions or policies endorsed by government bodies that result in unfair treatment of minority communities. This features the role of state mechanisms in contributing to discrimination and marginalization.

Discrimination, Exclusion & Prejudice, accounting for 14 incidents (6.14%), and Media Manipulation and Distortion of Facts, with 19 incidents (8.33%), are less frequent but still significant. These incidents accentuate the pervasive nature of favoritism, both in societal attitudes and the media narrative. They show how prejudice can infiltrate various aspects of society, reinforcing negative stereotypes and justifying further discrimination.

Incident Distribution Indian States

Analysis

Uttar Pradesh, Madhya Pradesh, Maharashtra, and Uttarakhand have reported the highest number of incidents, indicating a concentration of hate crimes that may be influenced by specific regional factors. These factors could include local political dynamics and social tensions, which contributes to the elevated rates of such crimes. Understanding these regional influences is crucial for effectively addressing and reducing hate crimes in these areas.

Uttar Pradesh stands out with the highest number of incidents, totaling 94 incidents (41.23%), reflecting the state's complex regional political dynamics and communal tensions that exacerbate the occurrence of hate crimes. Madhya Pradesh follows with 24 incidents (10.53%), indicating its own set of local challenges that contribute to the prevalence of hate crimes.

Maharashtra and Uttarakhand report 19 incidents (8.33%) and 18 incidents (7.89%), respectively. While these figures are lower than those seen in Uttar Pradesh, they still highlight the concerning trends of intolerance in these states. New Delhi, with 15 incidents (6.58%), adds another significant entry to the list, signaling that regional capitals are also being impacted by these issues.

The “Other States” category accounts for 49 incidents (21.49%), reflecting a widespread issue of hate crimes across various regions. This suggests varying levels of law enforcement effectiveness and differing political commitments to addressing these crimes in different states. Additionally, Online incidents make up 9 incidents (3.95%), pointing to the growing role of digital platforms in fueling hate crimes.

Perpetrator Affiliation

Analysis

The significant involvement of political groups, religious extremists, and right-wing organizations in hate crimes features the organized and ideologically driven nature of these attacks. Additionally, the high number of unknown perpetrators affirms the challenges in identifying and prosecuting offenders, complicating the efforts to address these issues effectively.

Political Groups are responsible for 58 incidents (42.03%), with the BJP accounting for 55 incidents, followed by AAP, MNS, and Shiv Sena (Shinde), each with 1 incident. This implies that certain political affiliations play a substantial role in driving hate crimes.

Religious Extremists are linked to 55 incidents (39.86%), with Bajrang Dal leading the charge with 27 incidents, followed by Vishwa Hindu Parishad (VHP) with 15 incidents, and other extremist groups such as Gau Raksha Dal, Hindu Sena, and several others, accounting for a combined total of 13 incidents. These groups contribute significantly to the ideological underpinnings of hate crimes.

Right-Wing Groups account for 45 incidents (32.61%), with Right Wing contributing the majority (35 incidents), followed by smaller groups like Sudarshan News (4 incidents), Raj Dharma News (2 incidents), and others, each contributing 1 incident. The data shows that right-wing ideologies and media are a key factor in fueling these crimes.

The largest category, by far, is that of Unknown Perpetrators, making up 70 incidents, or 50.72%. These are cases where no information about the offenders is available, underscoring the immense challenge in identifying and holding them accountable. It's unsettling to think that many of these unknown individuals could be ordinary members of the public, their minds warped by the toxic influence of extremist propaganda and divisive narratives.

Legal Status of Incidents

Analysis

Recent hate crime data highlights significant challenges in the legal response and accountability for such incidents. Arrests have been made in 50 incidents (21.93%), indicating some progress in addressing these crimes. However, 63 incidents (27.63%) remain pending investigation, and 115 incidents (50.44%) have seen no action taken.

There is a concerning inefficiency in the legal process, which sabotages the public confidence in the justice system's ability to respond effectively to hate crimes.

The involvement of political groups highlights the politicization of communal issues, while the participation of religious extremists in a substantial portion of the incidents points to the influence of radical ideologies. This situation necessitates urgent reforms to enhance the efficiency of legal processes and ensure stronger accountability measures. It is crucial to ensure that all perpetrators are held accountable and that steps are taken to prevent further hate crimes. The significant number of unresolved cases and lack of action in many incidents highlight critical gaps in the justice system, demanding immediate attention and reform.

Communal violence erupted in Madhya Pradesh's Indore city on Friday when firecrackers were thrown inside houses, said a woman victim who was allegedly attacked with a sword. “On the day of Diwali, our house was set on fire. Later, we extinguished it as we did not want to fight. The next day, they started throwing firecrackers in our house. We opposed it saying 'what kind of behaviour is this?' Later, about 40 to 50 people were seen brutally beating a boy. When we came out to rescue him, three of us were attacked with swords and other things,” said Rashida Bi. Monthly Breakdown

The monthly breakdown of incidents from October to December 2024 reveals a consistent and troubling trend in the frequency of hate crimes. October recorded 68 incidents (29.82%), followed closely by 67 incidents (29.39%) in November, indicating a relatively stable occurrence of such offenses during this period. However, December saw a significant increase, with 93 incidents (40.79%), the highest number reported for the quarter.

This distribution indicates that hate crimes were not limited to a specific month but continued to affect communities over time. The steady and escalating nature of these incidents highlights the ongoing prevalence of hate crimes, with the final month of the quarter showing an especially sharp rise. This trend reflects there is continuous persistence of such issues, further underlining the scope of the problem.

October 2024

October 2024 in India was marked by increase in incidents of communal violence and hate speeches, with numerous reports of attacks on Muslims, including physical assaults, property destruction, and forced religious chants. Several high-profile cases involved BJP leaders and Hindutva activists making inflammatory remarks, threatening economic and social boycotts, and even inciting violence against the Muslim community. The month saw a pattern of protests, legal actions against hate speech, and the demolition of structures linked to Muslims, highlighting a tense atmosphere of religious intolerance and communal discord in India society.

In a viral video, Gurjar claimed that 'killing 10-20 people would have prevented the unrest'. Report by Navbharat Times

Advocacy & Insights:

In response to the troubling report of 68 incidents of violence and hate speech in October 2024, formal communications were sent to the Chief Ministers of Uttarakhand and Uttar Pradesh, along with the Lieutenant Governor of Delhi. These letters conveyed deep concern over the alarming rise in communal violence, particularly against Muslims, and called for immediate action to address the rise in physical attacks, destruction of properties, and forced religious chants.

The letters highlighted the escalating situation, stressed by inflammatory statements from BJP leaders and Hindutva activists that included threats of socio-economic boycotts and incitements to violence. In light of these developments, the communications urged the respective authorities to take quick action, ensuring that those responsible for hate speech were held accountable under the law. Furthermore, the letters called for an immediate halt to the demolition of structures associated with the Muslim community, advocating for the restoration of peace and mutual respect.

November 2024

In November 2024, India witnessed a disturbing acceleration in communal violence and hate speech, particularly targeting the Muslim community. Incidents ranged from physical assaults, like the attack on a young Muslim man in Karnataka, to property eradication, including the demolition of a Muslim man's house in Uttarakhand. Provocative remarks and actions by BJP leaders and Hindutva activists, such as urging Hindu vendors to display religious identity and threats against mosques, further fuelled tensions among the society. The month also saw violent clashes during religious events, with fatalities reported in Sambhal, Uttar Pradesh, over a Shahi Jama Masjid survey.

Notable Incidents:

Communal Violence in Sambhal Over Mosque Survey (24 Nov 2024)

Hindustan Times reported. Violent clashes erupted in Sambhal, Uttar Pradesh, during a survey of a Shahi Jama Masjid, which was claimed by some to be a Hindu temple. The situation escalated to the point where three individuals, Naeem, Bilal, and Niman, lost their lives.

Advocacy & Insights:

In November 2024, in response to the alarming increase in hate crimes targeting the Muslim community, formal letters were sent to the Chief Ministers of Uttar Pradesh and Uttarakhand, as well as the Lieutenant Governor of Delhi, requesting immediate action.

In Uttar Pradesh, violent clashes erupted in Sambhal, where fatalities were reported during a Shahi Jama Masjid survey, escalating tensions. In Uttarakhand, the situation worsened with the demolition of a Muslim man's house, further inflaming communal divides. Meanwhile, in Delhi, BJP leaders and Hindutva activists made inflammatory remarks and issued threats against mosques, deepening the sense of fear and hostility in the region. These developments highlighted the urgent need for intervention to curb the growing climate of religious intolerance and communal violence.

December 2024

In December 2024, India witnessed a troubling spike in communal tensions marked by rising incidents of violence and discrimination against minorities. Political rhetoric increasingly reflected far-right sentiments, intensifying societal divides. The atmosphere of fear and aggression toward certain communities raised urgent concerns about social attachment and the protection of cultural diversity.

Notable Incidents:

Ajmer Court Admits Petition for Survey of Ajmer Sharif Dargah, Sparks Debate on Adhai Din Ka Jhonpra's Historical Claims (03 December 2024)

Ajmer Court admitting a petition seeking survey of Ajmer Sharif Dargah has renewed similar demands for the historic Adhai Din Ka Jhonpra, said to be one of the oldest mosques in the state and the country. In a statement, Ajmer's Deputy Mayor Neeraj Jain claimed, "There has been evidence of a Sanskrit college and temple in the Jhonpra. Death of Shahedin by Mob Over Alleged Cow Slaughter in Moradabad (31 December 2024)

Times of India reported 31 Dec, 2024 The Observer Post reported. A 42-year-old Muslim man, Shahedin, died in a hospital in Meerut after being brutally beaten by a mob accusing him of cow slaughter. The incident took place in the Mandi Samiti premises near the Mandi committee outpost in the Mazhola Thana area of Moradabad, Uttar Pradesh.

Advocacy & Insights:

In December 2024, India witnessed miserable escalation of communal tensions, with a significant rise in violence and discrimination against minority communities. The political landscape, heavily influenced by far-right ideologies, further deepened societal rifts, raising serious concerns about the fragility of social harmony and the preservation of cultural diversity.

In light of this surge in hate crimes, formal letters were dispatched to the Chief Ministers of Uttarakhand, Madhya Pradesh, and Uttar Pradesh, as well as the Lieutenant Governor of Delhi, appealed them to take immediate action in response to the high number of reported incidents in these regions. The correspondence emphasized the urgency of addressing the increasing violence and religious intolerance, calling for concrete measures to ensure the safety and security of affected communities.

Conclusion

The final quarter of 2024 has seen a disturbing increase in hate crimes targeting minority communities in India, with a total of 228 verified incidents, revealing the extensive scale of violence and discrimination. Muslims have been disproportionately impacted, accounting for 92.54% of the cases, which focuses the necessity for urgent intervention to combat entrenched religious intolerance and systemic prejudices.

The diversity of these incidents, which include hate speech, physical assaults, damage to religious sites, police misconduct, and state-sponsored discrimination, highlights the multifaceted nature and severity of the problem. The involvement of political factions and religious extremist groups in perpetrating these crimes indicates an organized, ideology-driven approach to this violence. Moreover, the substantial proportion of incidents where the perpetrators remain unidentified points to significant deficiencies in the legal and investigative systems, complicating efforts to ensure justice.

The Justice and Empowerment of Minorities (JEM) is committed to advocating for the rights of minorities and pushing for systemic changes that foster a more inclusive society.
